More: The Disney Marvel movies feature now that several originally avenged was the Marvel Cinematic Universe farell – or seemingly preparation to offer farvis landscape flowers – it's only a matter of time until a new sore of supers comes to define the team. Miss Marvel is coming to Disney+ and Hawkeye will train Kate Bishop in their upcoming show; so it goes without saying that these two newbies will be pivotal in the round of two teams. However, which MCU movies in Phase 4 will put the New Avengers narrative in motion? Are certain films featuring new characters, or putting the flower fields up for a transformation? Let's go to the MCU movies that are most likely to catalyze the new saga. Presidents Studios Marvel Feige | Jesse Grant / Getty Images for Disney 1. 'Thor: Love and Thunder' Thor: Love and Thunder will likely be the ultimate Chris Hemsworth bows like the Thunder God, as it will presumably pass the hammer - literally and moodically - in Jane Foster's Thor at the end of the installation. But many assume that Jane Foster is becoming a part of the A-Force, not the New Avengers. That is to say, he can fight alongside an all-female team led by Captain Marvel, as opposed to strength with Spidey, Doctor Strange, and so on. However, Love and Thunder may have another introductory character (sort of), who could become part of the new Avengers. Rumor has it that Loki - borne by Tom Hiddleston - will get stuck in his infant body during love and thunderstorms. So the film will provide an escape for Tom Hiddleston, while also keeping the character in the franchise. But the character would keep all of Hiddleston's senior memory; meaning, and with it comes from rejecting childhood villain despite sometimes heroes being born already. So he could choose to use his chances of a backdo to join the good guys, coming in to fight alongside the New Orleans Avengers team when the group gathers. 2. 'Black Widow' Several rumours actually enthusiastically black - two of which could be clearer connected to a new saga Avengers. If Yelena Belova takes over for Natasha Romanoff, she could become the new Black Widow of the franchise. However, if General Ross' finds its Thunderbolts outfits - a group of villains and heroes - these people could challenge the New Avengers (in a similar fashion to X-Hands and the Frehood); Black Widow could be the foundation for such a conflict via a prequel not too long ago. 3. 'Captain Marvel 2' According to the latest report from WGTG, Captain Marvel 2 will work to set up new Avengers flower fields. The outlet reported – relying on interls from MCU Cosmic – that Marvel Studios seeks to use Captain Marvel 2 in a similar manner to how they used Civil War. The film will report putting the characters where they need to be when the New Avengers begin forming in such an installation. And, like the Russo brothers called the Civil And Infinite War, the director behind Captain Marvel 2 will report touching Avengers 5. 5.
